

HERRIN QUIET UNDER MARTIAL LAW AFTER KLAN RIOTS

ROUND WORLD FLYERS BACK IN NORTH AMERICA

AIRMEN LAND IN LABRADOR ON LONG JUMP

St. Johns, Labrador, Sept. 1.—Lieutenant Lowell Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson, United States army, round-the-world flyers who flew from Ivigtut, Greenland, to Indian Harbor, Labrador, Sunday, planned to continue their historic flight today if weather permitted.

The airmen completed their 571 miles across the last stretch of the Atlantic in six hours and fifty minutes without mishap.

The aviators encountered a stiff breeze but it was not strong enough to retard their progress. Approaching the Labrador coast, they found the air somewhat hazy, but it was not thick enough to interfere with the flight.

Smith was the first to land, followed a few minutes later by Nelson. Both men received an ovation from a little group of watchers. Throughout the late afternoon and evening the machines were overhauled for a continuation of the flight today.

The airmen are now back upon the North American continent after having been absent for nearly six months. The next stopping place is Pictou Harbor, Nova Scotia.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Radio messages to the war department state that Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson landed safely in Labrador after a 572-mile flight over the sea from Greenland.

The fliers hopped off yesterday at Ivigtut and negotiated the journey in less than 7 hours. They flew in a northwest wind which blew from 20 to 40 miles an hour and speeded their machines at times as high as 126 miles an hour. With the American pilots were their mechanics, Lieutenant John Harding, Jr., and Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold, to whose unceasing labors not a little of the success of the flight is due.

The planes in their journey over the north Atlantic passed over the Milwaukee, off southern Greenland, the Coghlan and the Charles Auburn, which had been on patrol and which flashed ahead each in turn the passage of the planes overhead.

The aviators plan to continue 40 miles southward along the coast of Cartwright bay, a much larger and more sheltered anchorage place, where a base has been established for the next take-off. From Cartwright bay only brief stops are contemplated at Hawke bay and Pictou Harbor, N. S. Boston will be the next stop, thence to New York and Washington and across the continent to Santa Monica, Cal.

Just five months and 14 days after beginning their world-girdling tour, the American fliers landed in the waters of continental North America.

AUGUST SETS HEAT RECORD ON LAST DAY

Geel's fierce, Old Sol, mounted to 94 degrees Sunday afternoon, and established a high mark.

The hottest weather on August 31, was previously recorded in 1908, but at 3 p. m. Sunday the mercury mounted to within one degree of the record.

Sunday also was the second hottest day in forty-two years. At noon the temperature registered 90 degrees. At 1 o'clock it had mounted to 92 at 2 o'clock it was 93 and at 3 p. m. it had reached 94. The temperature was lower at 5 o'clock, registering "only" 92 degrees.

On August 31, 1908, a purple sweltered under a temperature of 95 degrees.

DATE TO DEDICATE MEMORIAL FIXED

Marion, O., Sept. 1.—Aug. 12, 1926, the third anniversary of the death of President Warren G. Harding, has been fixed as the date for the dedication of the Harding memorial here. The date was announced following a conference of the five architects who will submit plans for the memorial, and Brigadier General Sawyer, held at the association headquarters in this city. The judges who will select the plan from the five to be submitted will be appointed in a few days by the American Institute of Architects. While the exact site of the memorial has not been determined, the architects will comply with the plans of the landscape architect, A. D. Taylor of Cleveland, who attended the conference in this city. The selection of a plan will be made Nov. 1, and the actual work will start on the memorial in four months.

Crossing Fatality.
Toledo, Sept. 1.—John J. Johnson, prominent contractor, was killed when an interurban car hit the automobile he was driving near Maumee.

SAVE $35,000,000 IN GOLD FROM TORPEDOED LINER.

With the exception of a few stray bars, the entire $35,000,000 in gold bullion has been recovered by divers from the White Star liner Laurentic, torpedoed and sunk off Lough Swilly, Ireland, by a German submarine in 1917. The eleventh hour discovery of an unexpected storing place in the bow of the vessel, sunk in 90 feet of water, yielded the last $2,000,000. The divers, under Frederick Maskell, a deep-sea diver of 20 years' experience, have worked for six years recovering the gold consigned to American bankers. Rare gems, too, were recovered from the skeletons of passengers. The British Admiralty salvage ship "Racer" was anchored over the wreck, and from her the divers descended. The men on the "Racer" are shown searching through mud, brought up by suction tubes from the wreck, for gold and jewels.

SEVENTEEN KILLED OVER WEEK END IN MOTOR ACCIDENTS IN OHIO

With roads filled with the double holiday crowds, seventeen persons through Ohio were killed over the week-end in traffic accidents. Of these six were dead in Cleveland, five in Tuscarawas County, where a machine carrying home sight-seers from the state fair was struck by a fast passenger train and the remaining six in other sections of the state.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—When the auto in which Edward Loncar was driving alone, crashed with a Shore Line Limited car late last night, in Euclid village, the auto casualties of the week-end in Cuyahoga County had been brought to six. His machine was dragged one hundred feet along the right of way of the car line. Others dead were: Thomas Miles and Carl Lawrence, whose auto collided with a street car Saturday night.

Charles A. Curtis, 55, of Dayton who was struck by a truck Friday, and died yesterday in a hospital here.

Joseph Molnar, died of injuries received Thursday.

Paul Blessing, who ran into the path of an auto yesterday. The driver of the truck which struck Curtis was held on a charge of manslaughter.

Several hundred people, including many from a distance, former residents that had lived in the village as far back as fifty years ago, attended the "home-coming." This year's affair was not as large as the other two preceding, it is said, but enhanced by many more pleasant features.

Pike Street, the "Main Street" of the village, was roped off for three squares to accommodate the crowds during the day. Tables were arranged on the street for the picnic dinner.

After dinner, the program of the day was held in front of the L. J. Willenberg residence, where a lecture platform had been constructed. Several selections were given by an orchestra, followed by the main address of the day, by the Rev. J. O. Kirkpatrick, formerly of Spring Valley, now of Hindsboro, Ill.

After the Rev. Mr. Kirkpatrick's address, the Rev. Mr. Elliott, former pastor of the M. P. Church of Spring Valley, gave a talk.

The Alexander trio, composed of Leon and Otto Alexander of Dayton, and Mrs. James Zell, of Yellow Springs, sang, followed by the male quartet of Spring Valley. Clayton Sellers of Spring Valley gave the address of welcome.

Among the "home-comers" were the Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Anderson, of Chicago, where the Rev. Mr. Anderson is chaplain at the Wesleyan Hospital. Mrs. Anderson was before her marriage Miss Kirkpatrick and resided in Spring Valley.

The Methodist Protestant Church and the Friends Church of Spring Valley united for morning and evening services Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Kirkpatrick preached at the morning service and the Rev. Mr. Anderson at the evening service.

Bee Causes Accident.
Bellefontaine, O., Sept. 1.—Mrs. Harold McGee of West Mansfield was injured, probably fatally, when her automobile went over an eight-foot embankment into a creek. She lost control of the auto while trying to drive out a bee that flew into the sedan.

Still Seized.
Cleveland, Sept. 1.—Dry agents conducted a series of raids and bagged several alleged violators of the liquor laws here. Wilcox and his men reported finding a 50-gallon still in operation at one place. George Hussey was charged with possession and manufacture.

Boys Escape With Bruises.
Cleveland, Sept. 1.—Twenty students at University school were sleeping in the last coach of the Lake Shore limited when another train crashed into it near Savannah, N. Y. Though thrown from their berths amid splintered wreckage, the boys escaped with bruises. The boys reside in Cleveland.

Pried Open the Safe.
Youngstown, O., Sept. 1.—Robbers forced entrance to the Holland bread company plant, bound the foreman, David Smith, to a concrete pillar in the engine room, pried open the safe and secured $3,000 in cash.

Asphyxiated in Garage.
Columbus, Sept. 1.—Budd C. Moffett, 42, was asphyxiated by fumes in his garage. The body was found over the steering wheel of an automobile, in a position which indicated Moffett had tried to shut off the ignition. The motor of the auto was still running.

Claims Son's Body
New York, Sept. 1.—Suit for $150,000 damages was filed here by Charles A. Patterson, who alleges his son, Carl, had been buried alive at sea from the tanker Corning, and naming the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, owners of the vessel, as defendant. Patterson alleges that his son, a graduate of the state nautical school, signed on the tanker as a pump man and on Jan. 17, while working in the pump room repairing a leak, fell unconscious as a result of the fumes and the fact that he had been working 36 hours without a rest. He was taken on deck, the father alleges, and after he had been worked on for two hours without recovering consciousness was ordered sewn in a sack by the captain and thrown overboard. Several sailors protested that his son was still alive, Patterson alleges, but the captain refused to grant their request to haul a passing passenger liner for medical assistance.

Young Army General
Makes War Plans.

Brigadier-General Hugh A. Drum, U. S. A., is in command of the Plans and Training Division of the General Staff. He is the second youngest general in the Army, being four months older than Brigadier-General Douglas MacArthur, 44. General Drum is the son of Captain Drum, of the Tenth Infantry, first commissioned officer killed at Sanjago, and was given his father's sword and a lieutenant's commission by President McKinley when he was only 19.

Herrin, Ill., Sept. 1.—Troops are patrolling this city as a result of the clash Saturday between klansmen and opponents in which six men were killed and four or five wounded. A rival of a company of national guardsmen from Carbondale, a few hours after the shooting, prevented what local residents believe might have been a bitter battle between the two warring factions.

Four of the dead are said to have been klansmen, one was a deputy sheriff and an anti-klansman, and the other was a bystander with no known affiliation, killed by a stray bullet. The klansman are Dewey Newbolt, Green Dunning, Chester Reid and Charles Willard. Otto Rolland was the bystander and the deputy sheriff was J. H. "Bud" Allison. Herman Phemister, bailiff of the Herrin city court, is not expected to live, as part of his skull and right eye were blown away by a shotgun charge. Numerous warrants, charging murder have been sworn out by both sides.

NEW TAX APPEAL BOARD READY TO HEAR COMPLAINTS

Washington, Sept. 1.—Acting under authority of the new revenue act, President Coolidge has appointed 12 members of the United States board of tax appeals. The board is now organized, sitting and ready for business.

Before the board was created, the taxpayer who had been assessed additional taxes which he believed excessive and unjust was required to pay and seek his remedy afterwards. As a result, great hardships were experienced by thousands of taxpayers, big and little, who found it necessary to raise cash to meet an unexpected liability, which might later be shown not lawfully due.

Under the new law an attempt is made to remove this serious defect. The United States board of tax appeals is an independent tribunal, before whom alike the taxpayer and the treasury department may present their cases. If, after full hearing, the board holds that the additional tax is not due, the taxpayer does not pay, and therefore does not have to sue. On the other hand, the department, through the commission of internal revenue, is still free to test the matter in court. Should the board of tax appeals hold, however, that the tax is due, then an assessment is levied and the taxpayer must pay. But he is still free, if he chooses, to sue for recovery. He has had, at any rate, the advantage of a hearing before an unbiased agency unrelated to the revenue bureau or treasury.

All hearings before the board are, by specific provision of the law, open to the public. One of the most potent complaints concerning the old system was that all hearings and reviews before treasury officials were surrounded with the utmost secrecy.

In addressing the members of the new tax board, Undersecretary of Treasury G. B. Winston urged the necessity of speed in acting upon all appeals. "For the next few years," he said, "back taxes will be a very material part of the government's receipts. During the last fiscal year they probably ran as high as $400,000,000. We were averaging between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 a month when the new revenue act was passed. In June our receipts from this source dropped to $2,000. You can readily see, therefore, that unless your board acts with promptness and fairness to the government, our revenue will not be sufficient to carry us through the next fiscal year, the surplus of which is now estimated at under $50,000,000."

DISARMAMENT IS CONSIDERED AT LEAGUE MEET

Geneva, Sept. 1.—Disarmament was one of the dominant issues confronting the league of nations assembly meeting which opened here today. It will be coupled with Premier Herriot's proposal that a general security agreement be drawn up and signed to protect nations against aggressions by more powerful neighbors.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald will arrive Wednesday with security proposals he had previously discussed with Herriot in London.

A special committee of the league has been at work upon disarmament proposals. In this connection a little group of Americans, headed by General Tasker H. Bliss, former chief of staff of the United States army, brought a disarmament treaty to Geneva to be submitted to the league. The American government is not responsible for this treaty or any part of it.

This is the fifth annual meeting of the assembly. There are a large number of Americans present. Among the spectators at the opening session were George W. Wickersham, former attorney general, Judge Charles W. Lamont, a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company.

ALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS SMASHED AT 1924 OHIO FAIR

Columbus, Sept. 1.—It was officially announced that the Ohio state fair of 1921 broke all former records with a total attendance of 340,000. This figure includes Sunday, but the attendance this year surpasses the 1920 all-time record for the six days alone, with a total of 313,322. The 1920 record was 312,000. Saturday's attendance was 28,042.

Director of Agriculture Charles V. Truax issued a statement, saying: "We consider the fair an unequalled success from every point of view. We have set a standard that never can be lowered, and the fairs must become bigger and better each year. Work for the 1925 fair will be started at once."

"One of the most pressing needs is for more grand stand space. We can pack 12,000 into the stands and bleachers, but almost every day this week we could have used nearly twice as much. A building program worked out for the next 10 years calls for a new agricultural building, a new horticulture building and others. We will ask the legislature for appropriations to carry on this program. Fifteen acres more land probably will be purchased. We have the money for that. Eventually the state should own land north and east of the grounds, making the total about 200 acres."

"The beginning of campers at the fair was seen this year. This will grow, and we must provide more room. The exhibits are growing larger and we will need more space to handle them."

"Ohio is a particularly well balanced state for fairs. We have both agriculture and industry developed to a high point, and the annual exposition reflects the progress of both. We are well situated geographically, for we attract the big cattle exhibitors of the east, the horses of Kentucky and the grain and live stock from Indiana and Illinois."

"This is the only fair of any size in America that operates without a midway, games of chance and gambling devices. It is not only the biggest, but the cleanest. Every exhibit was educational in character."

"The entry of exhibits by the state highway, industrial relations and education departments was a new feature this year, and one which attracted much favorable comment. These, too, probably will become more extensive as time goes on."

"The night crowds have been unusually good this year. Three times we have sold standing room in the Coliseum and five of the seven nights it was practically filled. The pageant in the grand stand attracted crowds every night and was entirely successful."

The Pigua boys' band won the band contest that had been on between five specially selected contest bands during the week. Cleveland West Tech took second and Akron third in a close scoring contest. Wauseon was fourth and Marietta fifth, although only a few points separated all.

MINISTERS SAY BOOZE WAR RESPONSIBLE FOR GUN BATTLE SATURDAY

Herrin, Ill., Sept. 1.—With eleven persons under arrest charged with complicity in Saturday's gun fight in which six were slain, an ominous quiet enforced by four companies of the Illinois national guard who patrol the streets with bayonets fixed, prevailed in this storm center of Williamson county today.

Meanwhile both klan and anti-klan forces were attempting to serve the remainder of 21 warrants charging each other with murder as a result of Saturday's killings.

No further developments were expected in the case until Wednesday when an inquest into the deaths of Saturday's victims will be held. Preparations were being taken today to provide troops to guard a meeting of ministers called for 3 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of discussing "What is the matter with Herrin?"

"It is a wet and dry issue, not a klan or anti-klan struggle," the Rev. John Meeker, pastor at the First Presbyterian Church declared, discussing the proposed meeting. "Herrin was split over the liquor issue long before the klan was heard of. After the recent cleanup led by many klansmen and other citizens, the foreign element with a few exceptions gave up violating the dry law but a wet ring composed of lawless natives adopted desperate measures to break down law enforcement with a result that Herrin is forced to witness these bloody tragedies."

Similar views were expressed by other pastors here.

"It is the decent people of this county against a gang of thugs," declared Dr. P. R. Glatfelter, of the First Methodist Church formerly a bitter foe of the klan.

Today there were still conflicting stories about the latest flareup of the feud here and of the number of casualties. It is generally believed, however that there were many wounded whose identities were not or could not be learned.

Funeral services for one of the victims, Dewey Newbolt will be held today. Preliminary arraignment of those under arrest in connection with the killings will be held tomorrow.

Those held now are John Smith, owner of the garage where Saturday's shooting took place; Harold Crain, a Herrin policeman; Carl Neilson, head of the Herrin Ku Klux Klan; Charles Benham, Harry Herrin, Thomas Thornton, Sam Childers, Clarence Wyatt, John Whiteside, Gordon Smith and John Crompton. All are in the Salina county jail at Harrisburg, Illinois. The jail is being protected by a force of special deputy sheriff against a possible raid by sympathizers.

STUNT FLYER SHOWS REMARKABLE NERVE AFTER BEING HURT

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—Only incredible nerve and daring while injured in a manner that would have caused the average man to give up, was responsible for the continued life of Homer Miller, 24, of Canton, a wing walker for the Kindred Air Circus of San Antonio, Tex., now doing their stuff at Glenn Martin flying field here.

Miller was poised on the wing of one plane late yesterday, waiting for another plane circling above him to come near enough for him to grasp the lower rung of a rope ladder. The upper plane dipped too much and a blade of its propeller struck Martin in the back. Martin, although knocked over the edge of the wing, hooked his arm around the fuselage, and hung on there until his pilot was able to effect a safe landing. When the plane reached the ground, Martin fainted.

He was taken to a hospital, where he was found to be suffering from a ten-inch hole in his back, inflicted from the propeller blade. Attendants said today, however, that he would recover.

CLAIMS SON'S BODY WAS BURIED ALIVE

New York, Sept. 1.—Suit for $150,000 damages was filed here by Charles A. STRAW HAT GOES TO ITS FINAL REWARD

Sunday, August 31, at midnight, marked the official end of the straw hat season.

The dictates of fashion demand that the hay bonnet be salted away for another nine months, when September arrives on the scene.

With as hot weather as any on record this summer prevailing, Xenia men will probably ignore the demand of the vogue, and continue to wear the grass headpiece until frost turns the brim up and the bonnet goes to seed.

Clothiers are now showing light weight felt hats designed to fill in the interim between the hay fever season and pumpkin pie. Crisp air will be needed to furnish the impulse to Xenians to throw away the straw hat forever.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

By ROGER W. BABSON

World-Famous Statistician and Business Authority

VII.—TAKING OUR BEARINGS

During my boyhood days in Gloucester, Massachusetts, the leading citizens were retired sea captains. They were a sturdy and manly lot of men, men who had seen things and men who had accomplished much. These sea captains had many quaint but impressive sayings. Among them was this: "We had better stop and take our bearings." By these words they meant that it was time to take their latitude and longitude.

Aboard ship one can easily and at any time glance at the compass and tell the direction in which the ship is travelling, but to take the latitude and longitude, that is, to find the exact location of the ship at a given time, is quite a different matter. This is usually done by sighting through special instruments at noon when the sun is shining, and then figuring out the readings. Generally only the captain and the mate are able to "stop and take bearings."

JUST WHERE ARE YOU? After retiring from sea life, these sea captains still used this phrase when affairs—town, business, or personal—were going too fast, and they felt it was time to stop and take bearings—to see where they were and for what they were headed and whether or not they were on the correct way to the desired port.

To statisticians and analysts of conditions this certainly seems to be the great need of men today—especially of American business men and the younger generation in colleges, factories and stores who are striving to become business men. All are hustling and bustling, pushing and pulling, crowding and hunting, but without any clearcut notion of location, and in many cases, without even knowing where they are really bound or how to reach the desired port. Hence the importance of taking one's latitude and longitude.

FEVERISH ACTIVITY THAT LANDS NOWHERE

It is not enough that every one be busy. Many are busy, trying to get something for nothing. The burglar is a very busy man at times. Many are crowding, simply to get the other fellow's position. Many are hurrying, to get under cover so they will not have to work. Many are seeking, to do as little as possible. All of us, however, are traveling like a mob chasing one another, believing that something must be ahead which we should see or get. Why? Because every one else is going after it. So we strive and crowd from the cradle to the grave because others are doing the same thing. But we do all this without any clear idea of what we are striving for or whether or not we are going in a direction which will really give us what we want.

So the great need of today, in all nations and among all groups, is that we stop and take our bearings. "Stop, Look, and Listen," the sign of danger at railroad crossings, should be hung over the desk of every business man and student. Until we do thus stop and take our bearings, we are wasting a tremendous amount of good material and energy.

ARE YOU HEADED RIGHT?

Statisticians are often greatly amused at the talks of some efficiency experts. These experts are great for efficiency, but for what purpose? The sea captain may be the fastest and most "efficient" sailor on the ocean, but if he cannot take his longitude and latitude, his efficiency is of no account. When we are headed in the wrong direction, the faster we go, the worse off we are. Paradoxical as it may seem, often the more efficient we are, the less efficient we really are. We must beware of the blind leading the blind. The first step in becoming efficient is to get headed in the right direction and toward a worth-while goal.

When next in a farmyard, bring out a dish of meat scraps for the young chickens. Instead of throwing out the scraps one by one, put the entire plate on the ground and watch what happens. At first the chickens will simply stand around and look at the plate. If it is the first plate they have ever seen, it will be some time before one has the initiative and courage to go to the plate and take anything out of it. Finally one chicken ventures to seize a morsel from the plate. What happens? Do the other chickens go to the plate and eat also? No. The chicken which has secured the morsel runs away with it as fast as he can.

Immediately all the other chickens follow. Often they will trample over the plate in their desire to follow the crowd. Often the plate with the meat scraps will be left for some time untouched while the chickens chase one another to take away from that one lone bird the morsel which he ventured to obtain from the plate. Certainly if one wants an illustration of ignorant selfishness of many employers and many employees it is to be found in a barnyard.

CREATE DON'T COVET

On the other hand, there is the chemist in his laboratory seeking to find a way to check disease. At every point he stops and measures. He tries a hundred methods and makes thousands of tests. He cares not what others are saying or doing. He does not follow the crowd but blazes the trail for new discoveries. He has a goal—a goal which no one has found and which many say cannot be reached. He seeks it just the same, fearlessly, tediously, and alone. This is the spirit which brings him success. The spirit so much needed today by young and old—in the mills, the market places, and the institutions of learning.

Moreover, in taking our bearings, we should think for ourselves. It is well to talk and advise with friends, but it is never well to leave the final decision with them. The sea captain who does not know how to take his latitude and longitude, or who after taking his bearings does not adjust his course accordingly, is hopeless. Those who, after consultation with others are not willing or able to make their own decisions and abide by them are lost before they start. The ability to make decisions is very fundamental to success.

THE GREAT DECISION

Probably the greatest decision which we are called upon to make is the port into which we are to direct our lives. We shall never realize what true success is until we—each one of us—set a goal for our own individual life. The degree of our success depends very largely upon this goal.

What this goal is depends almost wholly upon one's religion. Fundamental decisions are largely the product of spiritual qualities. A man's character often has more to do with his decisions than any information which he may acquire. Decisions, therefore, must not be based upon material considerations alone. We must renounce the vain pretence of applying material methods to solving spiritual problems.

The scale and yardstick should be applied in making decisions which determine success or failure; but the decision itself should be based on spiritual considerations.

DO YOU HAVE HUNCHES?

It is often said of successful men that they have wonderful "hunches." They make decisions on the spur of the moment, and often their first decisions are the most valuable. This may or may not be true, but if it is true, it is due to the fact that these first decisions are more spiritual and less material than the later ones. When a man's motives are purposes are right, and his life is controlled by a desire to be of service, then he possesses an unconscious spiritual power which probably has more effect on which directs him in making decisions. With a first decision this spiritual power probably has more chance to direct than at a later time when the material considerations predominate.

This need of decision applies to all phases of life, especially in connection with business. George M. Reynolds started on his road to fortune in a Western Iowa agricultural community about forty years ago. He has built up and is now at the head of one of the largest banks in the United States—the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago and is recognized as one of the greatest financiers of the world. Listen to what he says in a reported interview:—

CAN YOU DECIDE QUICKLY?

"I have never accomplished anything big in my life that my friends have not urged me to take a different course. A man to succeed as to do anything else, must think for himself. Fortunes are built on decisions that are largely the impulse of the moment. I have always made that my rule. Opportunities present themselves, and they must be grasped. Get the facts, be actuated by the right motives, and then act."

J. P. Morgan, the great business genius, wisely said: "The foundation of wealth is the first decision well made and the first hundred dollars well invested."

Rothschild, the great banker, said: "Determine an enterprise that the public must ultimately support. Here lies the secret of success."

George Westinghouse, the inventor of the airbrake, said: "Five thousand Americans are each millionaires because they had the courage and ability to decide questions quickly and correctly."

E. H. Harriman, the railway king, said: "One good decision is worth a lifetime of saving but be sure the decision is made with the desire of rendering service."

A noted educator gave this as his definition of education: "Education is acquiring the ability to make intelligent decisions after taking one's bearings. First, mark out a line to follow and then adhere to it unflinchingly."

WHO DOES YOUR THINKING?

An investigation of the past business methods and records of the most successful men in your community or elsewhere, will show you that they had the courage to think for themselves and to make decisions for themselves. They often took their latitude and longitude in order to keep headed for the one goal which they sought.

There is a phase of our modern industry, however, which is very harmful to the development of the power of decision, namely, our methods of standardizing in industry. Often a man spends his entire working day in performing just one little operation, hundreds or more of such little operations being required to make the completed article. The man thus employed has no chance to use or exercise his judgment, no chance to make decisions, no chance to share in the joys of creative industry. The story is told of the man who was asked, "What do you work at?" his answer was, "At the Motor Car Works attaching Nut No. 5." The work of such a man is a prison wall to his mind. Thus the growth and development of such a man himself depends wholly upon what he does with his time in the other hours of the day when his mind is released from daily routine.

LOOKING FORWARD

If we must look forward to a future when all industry will be thus standardized, it would present a very distressing picture. There is hope, however. The spiritual forces of this world are more powerful than the material, therefore the spiritual qualities in man will predominate. Thus man will develop further and improve.

Harry L. Davis, former Mayor of Cleveland and former Republican Governor of Ohio, has been renominated by Ohio Republicans to try again for the Governor's office. He will be opposed by A. V. Donahy, Democrat and present Governor, who also was re-nominated. Mrs. Morgan A. Belmont, noted New York society leader, is reported about to abandon society and sell goods in a Fifth Avenue shop. Bob McAllister, famous sprinter and now a member of the New York police force, stepped into first pages when he brought down an alleged bandit by shooting him. The man tried to outrun the former champion.

MODISH MITZI—Mitzi Says It's Fall By The Fashion Calendar

By Jay V. Jay

This is our heroine, Mitzi, about to do her daily dozen and a half blocks by walking up from Forty-second Street to the Park—because the shop windows are full of such fascinating styles for fall. Her dress has wide Directoire cuffs and revers.

Mitzi meets a friend, dressed in a new fall frock of black crepe-back satin with a ribbon tie of the red. Notice Mitzi's hat. It has the very high crown that is scheduled for smart wear this fall. Her friend's hat is a little black felt, also with a high crown.

Another friend of Mitzi's is showing the world a second version of the smart street frock for autumn. This is a silk faille in navy blue with pipings that give a coat effect and a jabot in a bright contrasting color. Her felt hat matches the trimming of her frock.

This hat has a felt crown and velvet brim which is a most modish combination. The delightfully smart dress is of crepe silk trimmed with dore braid. The cape panel drapes on the side in a quite unusual fashion. The dress and hat are both a golden brown.

College Boys

to compete with Aviators

From New York to San Francisco from sun rise to sun set is some flying stunt. To write 550 subscribers to the Pictorial Review in eleven weeks is also some flying stunt. This is the task that 3 college boys who are now co-operating with us in our Pictorial Review Campaign have undertaken to earn them tuition and expenses in college for the coming year.

One of these young men will call on you in the next few days to explain the splendid plan whereby you can secure the Pictorial at a reduction. A moments courtesy will be highly appreciated by us and by us and by him.

These young men come to us highly endorsed by the best of reputable houses and you assume no risk in giving them your order. Each man carries with him a credential letter from the Pictorial Company. The young men are:

FRIGHTFUL OCEAN TORNADO LAST WEEK

A tale of the sea rising in terrible majestic anger against puny man and his toy leviathans, a story surpassing the imagination was unfolded when the White Star liner, "Arabic" came limping up the sunlit, placid waters of New York Bay, heavily loaded with home-coming passengers from Europe.

Shortly after 3 o'clock on Tuesday the hurricane, with no warning, propelled a mountainous sea which struck the Arabic abaft the bridge on the starboard side, and piled 100 screaming men, women and children, into a heap in a corner of the main lounge. On top of them came furniture, paintings from the walls and glass from shattered portholes.

There were panic-scenes of fear and horror that those who lived through them will never outlive.

Then for six hours the 16,000 tons of steel was hammered and wrenched by stupendous seas, piled up by a 120-mile an hour wind.

Officers went among the terrified passengers, many of whom were in the throes of seasickness as well as suffering from injuries, trying to calm the whimpering women and children.

Water rushed over the decks and poured down the companionways. Portholes were smashed in as if they were made of paper mache. That night sick and injured and panic-stricken sought for places dry enough on which to lay their heads, not for slumber but for a slight surcease from the unforgettable shock that had shaken their souls as well as their bodies.

In a little more than an hour after the little group of officers on the bridge had observed the ominous falling of the barometer, the wind had risen to its greatest fury, breaking from the south-east and veering to the southwest.

Passengers were all inside. The smoking room was crowded. The forward lounge was jammed with men, women and children. In the dining room a few tables were in use. The wind shifted, treacherous, fickle. The waves were now breaking high above the ship's bridge, normally sixty-five feet above the water-line.

The sea followed the feinting tactics of the wind. It was sparring for an opening. The chance came. The Arabic was wallowing in a trough. The blow now was straight from the massive shoulder of Neptune. The liner sagged and started to topple. Almost on its side it righted itself and staggering drunkenly from the blow, wallowed on.

Stokers at work in the fire room of the liner dug fuel with their hands when shovels were swept from their hands in the rocking hold.

The heroine of the panic which prevailed when the gigantic waves rocked the ship was a woman, whose identity is so far not known. She took her place at the piano on the ship's lounge at the height of the excitement and calmly played and sang. Her bearing had a quieting effect on the other passengers.

CALLES MAY BE PRESIDENT IN NAME ONLY

Though General Elias Calles is generally regarded as President-elect of Mexico, he is not yet so officially, and the party that opposed his election has protested to President Ebert of Germany for receiving him with official honors. In Mexico there is an interim between election day and announcement by the Congress of the results, just as there is in the United States between the time the people cast their votes and action by the Electoral College. In Mexico, however, as in most Latin-American countries, this interim is more important than with us. It gives time for campaign animosities to cool down and immediate announcement of the results of the voting, might, coming hard upon the excitement of a campaign fight, lead to untoward incidents that are at best only too frequent. Moreover most elections are fiercely contested in the Congress and the apparent winner is never sure of himself until he has passed through that gauntlet. In the case of Calles, supported by Obregon, there is little doubt of the outcome. Had his opponent won the popular verdict, however, his chances would have remained to the last moment extremely uncertain.

Today's Talks

THE FLAPPER MOTHER

A mother has written me about bobbed hair deploring, as she says, its effect upon the future generation.

There is nothing to be concerned about. Bobbed hair makes neither good nor bad mothers. If anything, I am inclined to think that it makes for a more healthy mother.

There is no more special reason why women should wear long hair than there is that men should. Men used to wear their hair long.

For one I welcome bobbed hair for the reason that it looks comfortable and is undoubtedly a healthy way to treat the hair, regardless of the fact that the poet has so much to say about the glory of a woman being in her hair.

But as for bobbed hair making for poor mothers I do not believe it. A few days ago, while traveling on the train, a young woman came into the car with bobbed hair. She did not look to be more than 20 years of age. Yet she was the mother of two beautiful children.

And the way she hid their faces in that bobbed hair and let tiny kisses play within it would have killed every thought that bobbed hair makes poor mothers.

We had good mothers when bustles were the style, and hoop skirts and puffed sleeves. Motherhood is born. It isn't a style or a vogue. It's that natural sleeping beauty of mind and heart that is planted in a woman's soul when she is born.

No coming or passing whim of taste or style or habit is able to destroy that which a mother is by birth. And women are not growing worse any more than men are. Their greater freedom will make them better able to cope with the cruel thrusts of the world.

"Flapperism" as a term and popular whim of the day will pass. Then there will be something else to take its place. And the world will walk right on, probably better off than ever.

REPUBLICANS WILL ORGANIZE SATURDAY

The Greene County Republican Executive Committee will meet next Saturday, September 6, to organize, elect a permanent chairman, secretary and treasurer. The organization will probably take place in the Common Pleas courtroom of the Court House although no definite meeting place has been set.

The eleven members comprising the executive committee elected at the organization of the central committee are expected to formally endorse the Republican National and State platform and plan for the fall election campaign.

The endorsing of the platforms is formality. The Republican Central committee was the first organization of its kind in the state of Ohio to endorse Coolidge for President.

TRAFFIC OFFICER IS NAMED HERE

Peter Shagin, Dayton, experienced motor cycle officer, has been appointed motor cycle policeman and traffic officer on the Xenia Police Department by S. O. Hale, city manager, assuming his duties Monday.

Shagin has been appointed as an acting officer because of the advantages of having an experienced officer assuming the duties of regulating traffic and chasing speeders. He has his own motor cycle, which eliminates the necessity of the city furnishing a machine.

The new officer was a dispatch rider during the World War, and has worked with speed officers since then. City officials believe he will materially aid police in curbing reckless driving, speeding and other motor law violations.

THE DAY OF REST

1904-Twenty Years Ago-1924

The Methodist conference in session at Miami Beach continued its deliberations Thursday morning, afternoon and evening.

The new county treasurer, Mr. O. B. Kauffman will assume the duties of his office on Monday, Labor Day, succeeding Mr. Asa Little.

Members of the local chapter of the Golden Eagle received word Thursday from those in attendance at the state convention of the Knights of the Golden Eagle that Xenia has been selected as the next place of meeting.

A protest has arisen over the new system of accounting for the county auditor and treasurer which will go into effect September 5. The system makes a great deal of additional clerical work for those officials.

The special musicale held at the Presbyterian church Friday night begins promptly at 8 o'clock.

DISHES IN THIS WEEK'S MENUS

TOMORROW'S MENU
Breakfast	Melons
Cereal	Fried Eggs
Luncheon	Vegetable Soup
Cream Cheese Sandwiches	Celery
Tea	Dinner
	Veal Cutlets
	Mashed Potatoes
	Beets
Coffee	Fruit Salad
	Cup Custards

Jellied Veal: Soak one tablespoon of granulated gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water and dissolve in one cup of boiling water; add to this one-fourth cup of sugar, two table-spoons of vinegar, two table-spoons of lemon juice and one teaspoon of salt. Strain, cool and when mixture begins to stiffen stir into it one and one-fourth cups of cold cooked veal (left-overs from Veal Cutlets may be used), one red sweet pepper which has been cooked and minced, two hard-boiled eggs cut in strips. Turn into a wet mould and chill. To remove contents from the mould easily, sink the mould for an instant up to its rim in hot water; this softens the gelatin slightly where it touches the mould and loosens it.

Maryland Beaten Biscuits: Put two scant quarts of bread flour into a bowl with one teaspoon of salt, and rub into this with the finger-tips one-tablespoon each of lard and butter. Also add two cups of very cold water, and mix to a smooth dough. Turn this dough out onto a bread board and beat it with a rolling pin till it is full of blisters and well puffed up, turning it as you beat. Form it quickly into small biscuits, sticking each with a fork, and bake on a greased pan in a hot oven for 15-possibly 20 minutes. (Note: Inasmuch as neither yeast, baking powder, nor any other raising agent is used in these biscuits, the success lies in thorough beating.)

Orange Bread Pudding: Beat three eggs thoroughly and add to them one-half cup of sugar which has been cooked to a caramel and then dissolved in one-half cup of hot water and strained. Also add one-half cup of additional granulated sugar (this not caramelized), three cups of sweet milk, two cups of very fine, dry bread crumbs and the grated yellow rind of one orange, one-third teaspoon of ground cinnamon and salt, the juice of two of one, and one cup of dried currants. Butter a pudding mould, sprinkle sugar over the inside of it, turn in the pudding mixture and set this mould in a pan containing hot water. Cook for about 40 minutes in a medium-hot oven, as any custard. Do not let the water in the pan boil or the pudding will "wey." It is done when firm in the middle.

A RHYME FOR PATTY CARHARTT

The other evening after tea
Patty Carhartt came to me,
Dressed in her dainty frock of pink
As cunning as a fairy's wink,
As shining as a cockle shell,
As lovely as a silver bell,
Her voice as sweet as those clear chimes

Which summon us at dinner times;
And giving me her hand, said she:
"Please write a little verse for me."

When queens command, then subjects all
Obey those orders, great or small;
Nor matters it the tiniest jot

Whether that queen be crowned or not,
Or old and sour, or young and sweet
You'll find us kneeling at her feet;
And so to Patty Carhartt I
Bowed low and with a downcast eye
Said: "Lovely little queen, I pray
What shall I write for you today?"

"Write, if you'd give me greatest joy,
Of when you were a little boy,"
Said she, in such a gracious way
I gladly promised to obey,
So now I start: Long years ago
Ere ever this world came to know
The light of Patty Carhartt's smile,
For what seems now so short awhile,
I was a little boy who played,
Pies out of mud I often made.

A lovely mother smiled at me,
I sat upon my daddy's knee;
Toys with his watch and stroked
his hair,
No happier lad lived anywhere;
Life was a constant round of joy
When I was just a little boy,
And yet today, could such things be,
And boyhood come once more to me,
For my best girl this time I'd pick
You, Patty Carhartt, mighty quick.

GREENE COUNTIAN WINS IN GRAIN SHOW

James Bickett, near Xenia, member of the Greene County Farm Bureau Judging team, was placed in the second highest position in the state in the Grain Show contest at the Ohio State Fair at Columbus, held last Thursday.

Young Bickett's honor is a signal distinction to the Greene County boys and girls club work. The Greene County boys participated in the grain and live stock judging shows at the fair, in which sixteen vocational teams from the state competed, including sixty-four boys. The grain judging contest was the first of its kind held at the state fair.

The stock judging contest was held Friday at the Coliseum with eight hundred individuals competing. Beef cattle, dairy cattle, swine and draft horses were judged. The results of the stock judging contest were not announced.

Dawes Proposes Commission.
Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 30.—Discussing the farm situation in a speech here, Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice president, said: "We make but one promise, that the Republican party, utilizing the best minds and those by training best fitted for the task, will bend its every energy to the study of our agricultural problem to the end that through legislation or other means its solution may be accomplished. Whoever promises more than this is entering into a contract which can not be filled." He proposed a nonpartisan commission to study the farm problem.

LARGE AUDIENCES PLEASED BY SELLS- FLOTO CIRCUS HERE

Sells-Floto circus, now the largest in the world, showing at the Fairgrounds Saturday afternoon and evening proved to be a mecca for hundreds of circus lovers who thronged the grounds and packed the big show tent at both performances.

Opening with a gorgeous parade, which might well have been envied by the old Roman kings, a magnificent panorama was laid of a medieval sacrifice by an ancient king based on the old custom of throwing a beautiful maiden into a den of wild beasts as a sacrifice to a god or deity and token of worship.

An elaborate portrayal of this ancient rite of sacrifice combining scores of pretty maidens, swartly colored sons of Africa, slaves, beasts of burden, elephants and what not, all singing the praises of their king, completed the spectacle.

Nothing was lacking in curiosities and entertainment. Everything that goes to make up a circus was present, dare-devil actors, ludicrous antics of clowns, performing horses, elephants, dogs and wild animals. Three rings were utilized with the center arena as the chief center of attraction.

Featuring the acts were the performing leopards, lions, Nubian lionesses, polar bears, and Siberian tigers. These ferocious beasts, taken from the wilds of many countries submitted to the lash of their trainers and did all manner of feats, such as leaping through a ring of fire, "shooting the shoots," "teeter tottering" and high jumping. Hair raising acrobatic stunts, trick ponies, bare back riding and fancy trapwork were some of the other features.

Several of the greatest animal performers in their line "did their stuff" towards the close of the show. Greyhounds that broad jumped and high jumped amazing distances and horses that leaped their height in the air were some of the other features that delighted the big audience.

"The chase," with the hunters and their hounds was personified, a steeple chase was staged and an impromptu jockey race was held. A small crowd witnessed the "Buffalo Bill Wild West Show" immediately following the performance.

The "rangs" had the big show tent half down before the last tired spectator had wended his way out through the gates.

Circus wagons clattered over the streets in the residential sections of town for several hours after the final performance, but the circus loaded in record time and was off on special trains for Cincinnati shortly after midnight.

HELD FOR NEWPORT, KY. OFFICIALS

Wilbur Toner, 18, arrested Sunday by Sam Entminger acting special officer, may be held for Newport, Ky., authorities.

Toner was arrested after Charles Kafory told police someone had stolen an automobile tire and rim from the rear of his automobile. Toner is said to have admitted taking a tire and selling it for forty cents, but Kafory was unable to identify the tire.

While police held Toner they learned he was wanted in Newport, Ky., on a desertion charge and he may be returned to that city.

Health Hints
by the Father of Physical Culture
BERNARD MACFADDEN

Most people eat twice or three times as much food as they need, and take food which contains a much larger proportion of indigestible and indigestible matter, than is acceptable to the body.

In the body of the average person too much waste is taken in and made, too little waste is carried off.

The result is that first of all the waste matter, floating around in the blood begins to accumulate. Finally it gets too bad even for the long-suffering blood, and the blood puts it out, or tries to. And that is disease.

Just an effort of the body to throw out or to deposit in some other organ or tissue, certain decomposed matters resulting from retained waste.

Of all the means adopted by the system to eject its poisonous and undesired matters the most common is catarrh.

Catarrh, or catarrhal inflammation, is merely an abnormal flow of blood into the mucous membranes.

There is also another and most important result of this excessive flow of blood into the part, and that is, destruction of the membrane itself.

The blood laden with its disagreeable loads of retained waste matter, presses here and there seeking a point at which it may throw off its polluting and dangerous burden. It tries the lungs, they are too small, too weak, too insolent. It tries the skin. Then the harassed blood tries to force some poison out through the kidneys. But the kidneys are trying to save the man's life by sending out a thick fluid which is already far too heavily loaded with waste matters. Then the bowels; that's useless too. And so the blood goes on its tireless journey, round and round, three times around the entire body every minute. How shall it get rid of the waste? It pushes and pushes. Finally it finds a weak place, or something occurs to increase local pressure at a certain point in the mucous membrane—and then the blood pushes, breaks down the membranous wall which lies between it and relief and pours out copious floods of—well that's catarrh.

EAGLE FESTIVAL IS BROUGHT TO CLOSE AND QUEEN CROWNED

The curtain was lowered Saturday night on one of the most successful carnivals ever held in Xenia.

The Nat Reiss shows which have been the central attraction locally for the last week closed a six-day performance at Reserve Park, Cincinnati Avenue, for the benefit of the Eagle's Lodge, Saturday evening.

The show Saturday night was in no sense handicapped by the Sells-Floto circus attraction at the Fairgrounds, and about 5,000 people were on hand to take in the different side shows and see the Cavoviet auto awarded. Grove, Middle, Rural Route 7, near Alpha was given the machine.

The "traveling amusement park" showed before record breaking crowds throughout the entire six days and netted a nice sum for the Eagle's new gymnasium.

The popularity contest also drew to a successful close Saturday night, with Miss Mabel Milburn winning with 50,850 votes and Miss Bertha Hyman second with 46,580 votes.

The show closed one of the most successful engagements ever given in any city it was said. Excellent weather prevailed throughout the week.

The gift of the Chevrolet touring car and the two diamond rings in the popularity contest did much to sustain interest in the mid-summer festival.

The show was one of the best conducted that ever appeared in this city, a clean combination of amusements.

The Eagles Athletic Club members worked hard on the proposition and wish to extend their thanks to the people of the city and County who have made the new gymnasium possible.

The Eagles lodge is now going to make a drive for new members as the new gymnasium will be ready Oct. 1.

A special meeting of all members will be held Tuesday evening September 2 at the Hall. The meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock.

The standing at the end of the popularity contest:

Mabel Milburn	50,850
Bertha Hyman	46,580
Mary Shoemaker	42,610
Selma Goodman	38,290
Mildred Mason	35,798
Mary McFadden	23,220
Mary Sutton	18,150
Irma Hunt	8,840
Leontine Jenks	8,840

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

GAMBLING

Throwing aside any moral considerations as to whether it is right or wrong, gambling—say on horses—or marginal speculation by the outsider is a poor investment for the average man because of its by-products.

Gambling or marginal speculation by the outsider is a poor investment for the average man first of all, because the mathematical chances for success are overwhelmingly against him.

Worse than this, however, is the fact that gambling in any form excites and disturbs the average man so much that he is unable to do his regular work and go about his regular business normally or efficiently.

When gambling losses become habitual, as they often do, the worry grows more intense and a man's efficiency drops in proportion. The desire to recoup becomes so strong that a plunge is made—often with disastrous consequences and the former business efficiency of the gambler is broken to bits.

The Luxury of Love

by VIOLET DARE

AUTHOR OF "The Half-Time Wife," "Love or Fame?" ETC.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

MARY HAYWARD, a famous beauty, arrives at the country home of CAMILLA WAITE with two men, BRUCE GILLIAN and STEWART O'BRIEN.

Camilla warns Mary that she is in love with Bruce and that there is to be no poaching on her matrimonial preserves. Camilla realizes that Bruce is much interested in Mary, and plots with O'Brien to prevent his proposing to her. Camilla keeps Bruce from Mary's side at the dance that evening, but late that night Mary goes into the garden for a breath of air, and unexpectedly meets him. He tells her he loves her, asks her to elope with him at once. But O'Brien intervenes. The next afternoon Camilla announces her engagement to Bruce.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT

XI—THE CLAWS OF SPITE

MARY HAYWARD spent more time over dressing this evening than she had in months. It was not only because she wished she could conceal part of her beauty and still have more than most women boasted! But her frock was cut to her waistline in the back, and Mary Hayward's back was famous. In one hand she carried a fan, made of a single ostrich feather, so dark a purple that it was almost black. It was like an exclamation point at the end of a perfect sentence.

"You're superb!" O'Brien told her, hurrying to her. "I shan't stir from your side all evening."

She smiled; the merest flirt of her fan beckoned Vera's visiting earl, and he collided with Atwood in his haste to obey. Yet she greeted him with apparent surprise, and was so much interested in Atwood's account of a recent polo game that the Englishman began to wonder if he had read her signal aright, or even if there had been one—while Vera Atwood fidgeted and tried to annex Gillian.

"Mary's so gorgeous; no other woman has a chance while she's around," she exclaimed fretfully. "I'm always glad that I'm safely married when I look at her. Don't you think she's the loveliest thing you ever saw, Mr. Gillian?"

"But just a trifle—blatant, perhaps," Camilla cut in before he could reply. "Still, it's astonishing, the things she can do with one's old frocks, isn't it? Really, I've given her things that were simply hopeless, and she's made them look so child gauze over silver cloth, black chiffon, black lace, black tulle—it was economical to wear black! Pale yellow satin, moire, beautifully draped; dull green net, weighted with heavily beaded tassels—she looked on them all with disfavor, and finally turned away disgusted. If only she had something fresh and new! There were hampers of lovely new things in Camilla's dressing room, just arrived from Paris—if only she could have just one gown out of the lot!

She wanted to dress for the women as well as for the men; wanted to make Camilla and Vera Atwood and the others realize that she was more beautiful, more soignée than any of them. It would have been so much simpler if only masculine eyes had to be considered—if she looked lovely they would not know what she wore.

She began reconsidering her frocks, mentally picking them to pieces. And at last, seizing a pair of sheers, she caught up the cream-colored lace and deliberately cut it to pieces.

An hour later she paused, halfway down the stairs, and surveyed the others, who had been restlessly waiting for her. There was a moment's silence, then a gasp of surprise from Vera Atwood, and a hearty "My Lord, how beautiful!" from her husband. Never had anything quite so daring been shown them as Mary Hayward. She had discounted one of her greatest claims to beauty by concealing her hair; it was covered by tightly wound strips of pale gold cloth, that toned in marvelously with her skin. Her frock was the same pale, dead-toned gold, utterly without sheen; who would have suspected that it was the slip of one of her evening gowns, recut and fastened to its wearer with adhesive tape? It clung to Mary's beautifully rounded, swart young body as if it had been part of her. It was cut high in front—she had deliberately concealed her lovely throat, as she had covered her hair; she might as well have told the other guests that smart that I've wanted to take them back again!"

Mary paused halfway downstairs and surveyed the others.

The smile on Gillian's well-cut mouth was not a good thing to see; fortunately, Camilla did not notice it. Vera Atwood did, however, and clutched at what looked like respite from the moment's boredom.

"Oh, it isn't what she does to frocks, it's the way she wears 'em," she answered, carelessly. "And she wouldn't have to take anybody's cast-offs, if she didn't want to. Half the best modistes in town would pay Mary to wear their models, just for the advertisement it would be. Well, she may accept cast-offs in clothes, but never in men, my dear—just write that in your little book. Mary's always had the pick of the eligibles, and I thank my stars I married Jim before she was out of finishing school. I'd hate to think every time I looked at my husband that if Mary had wanted him I couldn't have had him."

And with a sweet smile she sauntered over to the piano, the weights on her train clicking on the bare floor spitefully, it seemed to Camilla. But Mrs. Atwood, glancing back over one bare shoulder, gave a deep sigh of satisfaction. Camilla had cheated her out of that sapphire bracelet by becoming engaged to Gillian, but somehow she felt avenged.

Tomorrow—A New Suitor

The little red hen

P UCK, puck, puck, puKA Yah," cackles the little red hen, as she steps off the warm nest, broadcasting to the barnyard that she has just laid a fine, fresh egg. She makes a product that any "manufacturer" might be proud of, and doesn't hesitate to advertise the fact.

A duck egg might be just as good, but the duck evidently doesn't think so. She doesn't advertise, and duck eggs have no market.

To be absolutely sure in buying ANY merchandise, stick to the advertised brands. For their manufacturers believe in them and tell you about them daily in the advertising columns of this newspaper, over their signatures.

The duck-egg brands might be just as good, but you cannot be sure, if the manufacturers themselves will not admit it!

Read the advertisements regularly. Buy from them. You will then know the source of the products, and whom to look to if they don't measure up.
